Disclaimer

The information contained within this publication and this website is intended solely for educational, informational, and developmental purposes.

Nothing contained in this Playbook or on this site should be construed as legal advice, financial advice, tax advice, investment advice, accounting advice, mental health counseling, athletic recruiting guarantees, NIL compensation guarantees, NCAA compliance guidance, professional representation, or employment advice.

Readers are encouraged to consult qualified professionals, including attorneys, certified public accountants, licensed financial advisors, mental health professionals, compliance officers, and other appropriately credentialed experts before making significant legal, financial, educational, athletic, or business decisions.

Participation in athletics, recruiting, NIL opportunities, collegiate athletics, and professional sports involves risk and uncertainty. Outcomes vary significantly among athletes and families. No representation, warranty, or guarantee is made regarding athletic scholarships, NIL opportunities, collegiate participation, professional contracts, financial outcomes, business success, or career advancement.

The Family Blessing Office™ Framework is intended to provide perspective, governance principles, stewardship concepts, developmental guidance, and educational tools designed to support athletes and families as they navigate increasingly complex athletic ecosystems.

The ultimate responsibility for decisions remains with the athlete, family, and their professional advisors. By using this publication or website, the reader acknowledges and accepts these limitations.

The Objective of This Playbook

The objective of this Playbook is not prediction. The objective is preparation.

The objective is not entitlement. The objective is stewardship.

The objective is not merely success. The objective is sustainable impact, responsible leadership, and lasting legacy.
